1. There was tension in the air during the reception held at the Hungarian Embassy in Moscow on 4 April 1955. Molotov, Khrushchev, and Bulganin were obviously intent on getting in touch with Western diplomats and held several individual conversations with them. The leading Soviets appeared somewhat ill at ease and less self-assured than on previous occasions. Malenkov, however, appeared composed and did not give the impression of being in disgrace.
2. The Chinese Ambassador, Liu Hsiao, was particularly courted. The Czechoslovak Ambassador, J. Vohsalik, was more deferential to Liu Hsiao than to Molotov.
